SUPPLEMENTAL EXAMINER'S AMENDMENT

1. An examiner's amendment to the record appears below. Should the changes and/or additions be unacceptable to applicant, an amendment may be filed as provided by 37 CFR 1.312. To ensure consideration of such an amendment, it MUST be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee.

The application has been amended as follows:

Cancel claims 8 and 14 as drawn to the non-elected invention elected without traverse.

SUPPLEMENTAL REASONS FOR ALLOWANCE

2. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: The claimed invention is drawn to the following:

1. A negative image-recording material for heat-mode exposure systems, which comprises (A) an IR absorbent including cyanine dye having an electron-withdrawing group or a heavy atom-containing substituent in at least one terminal aromatic ring, (B) a radical generator and (C) a radically-polymerizable compound, wherein images are formed therein by imagewise exposure to IR rays.

The inventive step of the claimed negative image-recording material is found in IR absorbent including cyanine dye having an electron-withdrawing group or a heavy atom-containing substituent in at least one terminal aromatic ring.

Prior art references disclosing the a negative image-recording material cited include AOSHIMA, KUNITA and HAUCK et al. Each of these references disclose the use of an IR absorbent material being a cyanine dye as disclosed, however none of them disclose the claimed IR absorbent cyanine dye having an electron-withdrawing group or a heavy atom-containing substituent. The examiner relies on the definition of a heavy atom-containing substituent to be defined on page 16, second paragraph of the specification wherein the heavy atom is defined having an atomic weight of at least 28.

Each of AOSHIMA, KUNITA and HAUCK et al disclose conventional IR absorbent cyanine dyes with no substituent on the terminal aromatic group in an explicit example. KUNITA and HAUCK et al each disclose IR absorbent cyanine dyes which having a chloride substituent group on the terminal aromatic ring and a compound which is seen as the defined heavy atom-containing group as recited in claim 1, however none of the examples in KUNITA or HAUCK et al explicitly disclose use of the terminal substituted aromatic cyanine dye as claimed thus the references fall under the statue of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) for obviousness.

The applicants have provided in their specification comparative results between the claimed IR cyanine dyes and those conventional disclosed such as IR-775 chloride and IR-786 perchlorate used in the specification. The comparative results indicated a printing plate that is formed with the claimed IR absorbent showed an improved printing durability over those printing plates which used the conventional cyanine dyes stated above.

Because of the objective evidence present in the specification, which compares the closest prior art IR dyes of KUNITA and HAUCK et al used in printing plates with the claimed IR dyes used in printing plates, demonstrated improved print durability of the plates any rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) would be overcome due to secondary consideration of unexpected results. Accordingly claims 1-7, 9-13, 15-30 are seen as allowable over the prior art of record and passed to issue.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
